The analytical method uses the Simple Linear Regression hypothesis test using SPSS, results with significant values are obtained: from the coefficients table, a significance value of $0.011 < 0.05$ is obtained, so it can be concluded that the variable gamification method (X) influences the variable interest in learning English (Y). While the t value: it is known that the largest t count value is $2.623 > t \text{ table } 1.999$, so it can be concluded that the gamification method variable (X) has an effect on the interest in learning English variable (Y).
